SCULPTORS EXHIBIT AT UNIVERSITY OF LOWELL

LOWELL, MASS. - Gallery 410 at the University of Lowell announces the opening of "Configurations In Space", a sculpture show focusing on the art of the human form, on Wednesday, October 18, 4:00 PM - 6:00 PM. According to Michael Costello, a member of the Lowell Art faculty, and Chairman for the exhibit, "The works present unique interpretations clearly demonstrating the figure will remain a timeless example of beauty and meaning."

The free campus exhibit, ranging from realistic to abstract, presents three-dimensional work in stone, clay, plastic, and metal. Sculptors featured include Michael Costello of the University, Robert Kaldeck, Fritz Sleer, Margaret Cassidy, William Schickel, Peter Schell, Sueyen Pyo, and Dorian Goldman. The work of these artists and graphic works showing examples of sculpture from Medieval to Modern times will be displayed through November 18.

Viewing hours are Monday through Friday, 10:00 AM - 2:00 PM, or appointments can be made by calling the University art department at 452-5000, extension 455. Gallery 410 is located in the south campus Student Union at Broadway and Wilder Streets, Lowell. The public is invited to see this group show representing artists from the community and University.

Gallery 410 was established three years ago by the campus Art Co-operative club, a student organization. "Configurations" is the second show this season.
